

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW:

→ OUR MISSION

- >Provide accurate and impartial criticism on issues around security in Africa and the world at large.
- >Offer insight, analysis and critiques on current security issues facing Africa.
- >To publish a credible and influential magazine that will galvanize the public especially the government and decision makers into taking actions that will change the political, socio-economic landscape and society in general for the better.
- >Provide a platform that engages Africans encouraging them to air their views and opinions on the various security policies and trends.

Call for Applications

The editors of secure magazine are looking for individuals from any country globally keen on African Security Issues who are not only willing to engage in thought-provoking conversations but also able to ignite controversial and important conversations of their own.

Important is the key to foresee important trends within the security field and provide revelations that have been ignored or foreshadowed by the majority.

→ Criteria

- >Ages 19- 35
- >keen on security with keen interest on conflict resolution, law, policy and war.
- >Critical analysis, creativity, clarity, professionalism is key to your work.
- >An academic background in international relations, political science, security studies, law or journalism is highly encouraged.
- >A one-page written sample should also be attached with your resume and cover letter.

This engagement is based on voluntarism, therefore all participants are volunteers and not in any way formally employed.

Send to:
writers@securemagazine.info

S E C U R E

INFORM . EMBRACE . DIGITIZE

BECOME PART OF THE TEAM

Background Information

Secure redefines story telling by embracing the digital revolution and using it to give the public a voice.

Secure seeks to arouse interest and understanding among various youth on international security issues with an all exclusive focus on Africa!

This Bi-weekly blog and quarterly magazine expounds on the pressing security issues facing Africa and its Youth which ultimately culminates into a platform where these are discussed and alternative solutions formulated.

Areas of interests:

Our primary focus is on security policies and issues; divided into four broad areas i.e. interests law, politics, war and conflict. Secure magazine works on a monthly themes expounded on in the course of the month and require guest bloggers as well as quarterly themes for the magazine.

Vision

To develop an enlightened and enabled African populace knowledgeable on the pressing security issues of the day able to find solutions to African problems through cooperative thinking and effort.

Our Audience

Globally-minded activists, decision-makers, and open-minded individuals seeking intelligent interactions and conversations